RESPONSE UNDER 37 C.F.R. § 1.111

Dear Sir:

In addition to the amendment previously filed on January 26, 2004 and now entered with the RCE, please consider the following response.

COMMENTS

In addition to the amendment previously not being considered as it was held to require a new search, it was stated that if the arguments were not persuasive as "it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the second identical flag arm for the purpose of balancing the device."

Applicants respectfully disagree with this position.

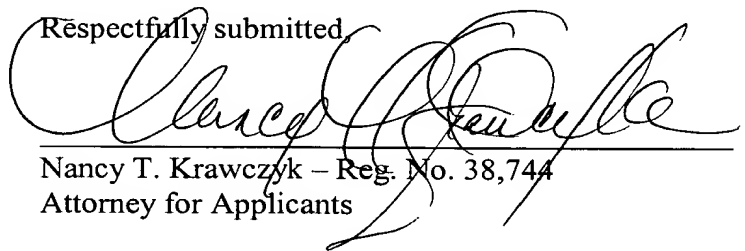

First, had it been so obvious to do so, the prior art would have already done so, and the prior art device never requires, teaches, or directs one to duplicate any feature for the purpose of balance.

Second, no prior art has been shown that it is known to provide an additional element for the purpose of providing balance to a switch. Any suggestion to do so appears to be based solely on hindsight teaching using Applicants invention.

In comparing the Admitted Prior Art and the present claims, the Admitted Prior Art has been vastly modified in a manner not appreciated by the Admitted Prior Art. The flag arm functions differently, a roller has been added for strength and stability, a second flag arm has been provided to increase and vary the manner in which the roller switch may be used by the operator. None of the features or functions are appreciated by the Admitted Prior Art, and the Examiner has cited no prior art to suggest that these functions would have been obvious in altering the function of the Admitted Prior Art.

The Examiner is respectfully requested to reconsider the rejection of the claims based solely on the Admitted Prior Art, and indicate allowability of all the pending claims.

Respectfully submitted,
